The temperature returned to 37 (mild tertian) or remained at 38-38.5 on the second day (malignant tertian). But this tertian attack may not be single and in 3 per cent, of our cases it recurred several times, constituting the double or triple or quadruple tertian attack which the 2nd, 4th, 6th and the 8th days are the fever-free days. In another form, the double tertian, which, in my wards, has been more frequent than the tertian, there are three daily attacks without any interval. This happened in 18 per cent, of our cases. This form may be unique or may recur in the form of six daily attacks (.5 per cent, of our cases). On only one occasion have I seen it tripled, nine daily attacks. This is the most depressing form. The patient promptly...
